THE MANITOWOC NORWEGIANS

The earliest documentary evidence for the presence of Norwegians in Manitowoc County appears in the census of Wisconsin Territory taken on December 1, 1847. Of a dozen names enumerated at that time which might be Norwegian, three can be identified and are the subject of articles in this book: Knud Swengin (i.e., Swensen), Christian Anderson, and Peter Masson (i.e., Madsen).

A census taken the previous year, on June 1, 1846, gives only one name which looks like it might be Norwegian: John Nelson, head of a household in Two Rivers Precinct consisting of three males. If John Nelson was Norwegian, we cannot identify him.

The census of 1850 gives us the first good picture of national origins, and allows us to see that the patterns characterizing Norwegian settlement in Manitowoc County had already been established. The majority were living in rural areas: 99 persons in Newton and 64 in Manitowoc Rapids. A smaller population, 81 persons, was living in Manitowoc, and 26 in Two Rivers. The only change in this pattern in later years was the settlement of Norwegians along both sides of the Manitowoc-Kewaunee county line in the 1850s. The census of 1850 is not helpful in pinpointing the rural settlements because the two townships where they lived were very large: what was then Newton is now Newton, Liberty, and Eaton, while Manitowoc Rapids was the entire northwest quadrant of the county. But the plat map published in 1872 shows that the settlement generally followed the Manitowoc River from Branch in Manitowoc Rapids Township to Clarks Mills in Cato Township, spreading south and west into the townships of Liberty, Eaton, and Rockland.

The Norwegian origins of the Manitowoc County settlement were also set already in 1850: the majority from Valdres (and specifically from the upper valleys, the communities of Vang, Østre Slidre, Vestre Slidre, and Nord-Aurdal) and from the southern coast (Gjerpen and Bamble being strongly represented). These two groups were memorialized when the country congregations took the names Valdres (the old spelling) and Gjerpen soon after they were founded. The southern coast was the home of the majority in the city of Manitowoc, where throughout the nineteenth century the Norwegian population worked at carpentry (including shipbuilding) and sailing, as they had done back home in Norway.

The very first Norwegian settlers in Manitowoc County came from locations to the south where they had settled earlier, particularly Chicago. But with the development of the port at Manitowoc, the village (and later city) soon became a port of entry for immigrants coming directly from Norway. As long as Great Lakes navigation was an important thoroughfare for immigration, Manitowoc served as a first stopping place. We can never know how many passed through on their way to a permanent home in America. Some may have stayed several years, some may not have stayed any time at all. Those who were here long enough to have a child baptized, or to apply for their first citizenship papers, may have found their way into this book.

Where did they go, the immigrants who didn't stay in Manitowoc County, and the children who grew up and left the community? That is more difficult to answer than the question of where they came from. As would be expected, many went west where land was cheaper or free. Southeastern Door County was settled largely from Manitowoc County in the 1870s, and Shawano County, Wisconsin, was opened to settlers in 1870, and attracted a large number from Manitowoc. The Auburndale area in central Wisconsin was a common destination, as was the area of Yellow Medicine County in western Minnesota. In the early years of the twentieth century, a number of Manitowoc people moved to Berwick, North Dakota. But one of the most common destinations was not west at all: the city of Chicago was a major draw at all times, especially for young persons leaving home to work.

The intent of this book is to present biographies of these Manitowoc Norwegians, with an emphasis on their family relationships. The biographies are based, in almost every case, primarily on the census records, with the details of vital data filled in from the church records. The vital records of Manitowoc County, the citizenship records, and cemetery inscriptions, supplement the basic sources or provide the information on specific events. All these record groups were used exhaustively, and this book is in fact a reorganization of these sources into accounts of individuals and their families. Many other sources were also used, though more selectively than those above, or as they were available. All sources are enumerated and described below.

The immigrants' life in Norway was researched whenever possible in the Norwegian parish registers and in bygdebøker, remarkable local histories recounting the history of each farm in a community and, with varying detail, the persons and families that lived there. These sources are likewise enumerated in the appropriate sections below.

The Organization of the Book

The order of the biographical articles is alphabetical following this pattern: first, by the first letter of the given name; second, by the surname (usually the patronymic); and third, by the entire given name. Similar names are alphabetized together; for example, Anders, Andreas, Endre, and Andrew, are all alphabetized as Anders.

Each article includes as many of the following sections (in this order) as are available or applicable:

1. The name of the individual, usually in the standard Norwegian three-part form--given name, patronymic, farm name--although the farm name appears only if there is evidence that it was used in the United States. Any alternative name that commonly occurs appears in parentheses; this will usually be an americanization which is different from the Norwegian form in an unpredictable way.
2. The names of the individual's parents.
3. Cross-references to brothers and sisters if they have their own articles and the parents do not.
4. Date and place of birth and of death.
5. Biographical information of various sorts regarding occupation, residence, date of immigration, Civil War service, etc. Dates of residence refer to earliest and latest appearance in records (usually the census), and rarely signify that the individual came to the location in the first year and left in the second. Information is provided which will help ascertain when the individual came to Manitowoc County. Civil War service is mentioned because of the wealth of personal and genealogical information which is often to be found in service and pension files.

6. Date and place of marriage, with the spouse's name and the same information on the spouse as enumerated in nos. 1 to 5 above; this for each marriage.
7. Children with birth date, as well as death and marriage information for children who don't have their own articles.
8. References to published accounts and photographs.

1. Church records

a. Manitowoc County Norwegian Lutheran church records

The ministerial records of the Norwegian Lutheran congregations in Manitowoc County date to the arrival of the first resident pastor in 1852. From the beginning there were three congregations: Gjerpen, Valders, and Manitowoc, and a fourth congregation in Two Rivers which did not last long. All were served by one pastor (resident at Gjerpen), who kept all the ministerial records in one book. This situation continued until 1871 when Manitowoc split off from the other two. A new pastor at Gjerpen and Valders began a separate parish register for the country congregations when he arrived in 1873, and began keeping separate books for the two congregations in 1893. From the earliest days, the Manitowoc County pastor held services at a number of places in eastern Wisconsin besides the three parishes mentioned above. From south to north these include Port Ulaio, Port Washington, Sheboygan, Mishicot, Gibson, Cooperstown, Kewaunee (in Franklin Town, Kewaunee County), Sandy Bay, and later at Stony Creek and Claybanks. Ministerial acts which the pastor performed at all of these places appear in the Manitowoc County book. The more distant points eventually got their own pastors. When the call split in 1871, the pastor at Manitowoc served the Norwegian Lutherans in northern Manitowoc and southern Kewaunee Counties (and Claybanks in Door County for a few years). Gibson and Kewaunee Congregations called their own pastor in 1880, who kept his own register, which included Sandy Bay Congregation when it was organized in 1886.

In 1873, a second Norwegian Lutheran congregation, not adhering to the Norwegian Synod, was established in Manitowoc and named Saint Paul's.

In 1898 a new pastor at Saint Paul's took over a newly-formed congregation in the village of Valders called Vor Frelser (later Our Savior's), as well as Kewaunee and Sandy Bay Congregations, and began a new parish register for each of his parishes. Thus, in 1900 there were eight parish registers in the area served by one book 30 years earlier: Gjerpen, Valders, Vor Frelser, Manitowoc, Saint Paul's, Gibson, Kewaunee, and Sandy Bay. At the present time, the records of Gjerpen, Valders, and Vor Frelser, as well as the original parish register, are in the archives of Faith Lutheran Church in Valders. The records of Manitowoc Congregation are at the First Lutheran Church in Manitowoc. Those of Saint Paul's, Kewaunee, and Sandy Bay, are at Saint Paul Evangelical Lutheran Church in Manitowoc. And the Gibson register is in the archives of Saint Peter's Lutheran Church in Mishicot. Most of the earlier records have been microfilmed, and microfilm copies are held by the archives of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America in Chicago, Illinois. The exception is the Gibson register: but a photocopy of it is in the collection of the Manitowoc Public Library.

The parish registers typically contain records of baptisms, confirmations, marriages, burials, and pastoral activity; some contain membership lists, which include detailed personal information. Membership lists may also be found in the congregational minutes. Of particular interest are the earliest congregational minutes of the Manitowoc County congregations in the archives of First Lutheran Church, Manitowoc, which contain a number of very early membership lists.

b. Norwegian Methodist church records

The Norwegian Methodist church in Manitowoc was founded in 1870, and was disbanded about 1915. The pastor also served the Norwegian Methodist church in Sheboygan, whose ministerial record book is in the archives of the Wisconsin Conference of the United Methodist Church in Sun Prairie, Wisconsin (microfilm at the State Historical Society of Wisconsin). It contains a couple records relating to Manitowoc families, and refers specifically to a similar book for the Manitowoc church. But if the Manitowoc book still exists, its whereabouts is unknown.

c. St. James Episcopal Church records

Gustaf Unonius, the first rector of St. James Episcopal Church, Manitowoc, was a Swede. Because no Norwegian pastor was available, the Norwegian settlers asked him to serve them. The records which Unonius kept during his short tenure here in 1848 and 1849 are a uniquely valuable source of information on the earliest settlers in the years before a Norwegian Lutheran congregation was founded. A transcription of the ministerial records is at the Manitowoc Public Library.

d. Fort Howard Norwegian Lutheran Church records

In the archives of Trinity Lutheran Church, Green Bay, Wisconsin (microfilm in the archives of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America).

2. Census

The Federal censuses of 1850, 1860, 1870, 1880, 1900, and 1910 provide decennial lists of persons of Norwegian birth and descent, and are a major source for this book. Only the schedules of Civil War veterans and their widows exist for 1890. The territorial censuses of 1846 and 1847, and the state censuses of 1855, 1875, 1885, and 1895, name only heads of households. But the state census of 1905, like the federal censuses, lists all residents.

3. County records

a. Vital records

Records of birth, marriage, and death in Manitowoc County are in the custody of the register of deeds. Transcriptions of early marriage and death records are available at the Manitowoc Public Library. An index to Kewaunee County marriages is in the Algoma Public Library.

b. Citizenship

Unless stated otherwise, declarations of intent cited in the text were made in Manitowoc County. The clerk of courts' index to these documents was published as: Manitowoc County Declarations of Intent 1848-1929, transcribed by members of the Manitowoc County Genealogical Society, edited by Robert A. Bjerke. Manitowoc County Genealogical Society, 1992.

c. Divorce

"Manitowoc County Divorce Cases", in Family Vines (Manitowoc County Genealogical Society), no. 54 (July 1988) - , provides summaries of divorce cases from the court records.

d. Land records

e. Probate records

4. Cemetery inscriptions

Tombstone inscriptions of all Manitowoc County cemeteries have been transcribed by the Manitowoc County Old Cemetery Society, and are in the collections of the Manitowoc Public Library. They are currently being published by the Manitowoc County Genealogical Society.

13. Personal communication

During the fifteen years of research which resulted in the publication of this book, numerous genealogists and family members have shared their research and provided information on families, especially on the younger generations. I would like to think that I have omitted no one from the following list of their names: Pauline Abel, Amy Anderson, Mrs. G. K. Berge, Forrest Brown, Betty Cowles, Marjorie Crane, Alice Diegel, James Ellingboe, Charles G. Erickson, Rolf H. Erickson, Marianne D. Felt, James E. Felten, Robert S. French, Suzanne Furgal, Richard W. Gates Jr., Douglas L. Gibson, Betty Jane Goold, Caryl Haack, C. O. Halverson, D'Arcy Hande, J. Margo Hansen, Kenneth J.
